

9 DEAD, 50 MISSING, IN FLOOD FOLLOWING TERRIFIC HURRICANE

Two Women, Said to Have Been Drowned, Found in Top of a Tree.

MANY INDUSTRIES PARALYZED

Factories Around Asheville, N. C., are Forced to Suspend on Account of High Water. Hundreds are Homeless and Railroad Traffic Hit Hard.

By Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 17.—Flood waters which swept parts of North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee and West Virginia yesterday taking a toll of at least nine lives, rendering hundreds homeless and doing property damage variously estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 were receding today.

The worst conditions obtained in Western North Carolina, where the flood was described as the most disastrous in the history of that section.

ASHESVILLE, N. C., July 17.—The death list from the flood that overwhelmed this section of North Carolina yesterday was increased to nine today.

Reports from Madison county said two lives were lost and that 50 houses were demolished in that locality.

The water was receding today and no more cars are entertained for the breaking of the dam at Lake Toxaway. Miss Nellie Lipe and Mrs. Leo Mulholland, reported drowned yesterday when the home of their father, J. C. Lipe, at Blount, was washed away, were found today tied in the top of a tree, according to reports received here. No reports of the further loss of life have been received. The Swannanoa and French Broad rivers are falling rapidly today.

Scores of large industrial plants around Asheville lay idle today in the grip of the flood that followed last week's rainstorm and hurricane which swept in from the Carolina coast and flooded parts of North and South Carolina and adjacent territory of Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. Five persons are known to have been drowned, 50 are missing and hundreds are homeless, while railroad service virtually is suspended in a large section on all sides of Asheville.

Estimates of property damage already have been placed at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000, while the total loss to crops, lumber mills, cotton mills, highway and railroad bridges, and miles of railroad track throughout the area that has felt the flood was expected to grow as belated reports came in.

The area that felt the effects of the flood extend from Eastern Tennessee through Southwestern West Virginia, Southwestern Virginia, across North Carolina roughly to Wilmington and embraces virtually all of South Carolina.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17.—It was persistently rumored today that the Lake Toxaway dam had given way. Railroad officials in Asheville said they did not credit the report. There was no wire communication with Lake Toxaway.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 17.—Flood conditions throughout West Virginia were somewhat improved today. Reports to the United States engineers' office here showed that the Kanawha river had risen to only 3.7 feet at Kanawha Falls, which, it was stated, would make the crest of the flood 20 feet at Charleston, where 35 feet was expected last night. Twenty feet was expected at Point Pleasant, where two Kanawha empties into the Ohio.

The United States engineers' office this afternoon changed its forecast for the flood maximum here from 25 to 35 feet. This stage will flood parts of the capital city.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 17.—A boat containing four men trying to save resident Engineer William Killian and two other Southern railway employees who were clinging to trees in the river capsized today and the men are probably lost.

All hope of saving any of the other 11 railway employees swept away yesterday with a bridge have been given up. A tree holding some of the men was swept down early today and the men carried away. Four employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company are also reported lost.

The American steamer Charles DeWitt, which reached here from Tilt Cove, Newfoundland, reports the ocean alive with sharks. Captain Seely says he never before saw so many sharks. From 50 miles east of Fire Island to port he saw schools of sharks probably several hundred in number, from 6 to 12 feet long.

Captain Myer of the Dutch steamer Beukelsdyck, from Rotterdam, also reports mighty sharks in large schools.

RENDINE WINS CASE

Local Barber Will Pay For His Water Under the Flat Rate.

HARRISBURG, July 17.—A decision was handed down today by the Public Service Commission in the case of R. F. Rendine of Connellsville against the Connellsville Water Company, in which Rendine's contention that he should pay for his water under the flat rate of $6 for the first chair in his barber shop and $2.50 for each additional chair, is upheld.

Rendine, however, must pay for three chairs, making his rate $11 per annum. He contended that he should only pay for two, inasmuch as the third chair is never in use.

Rendine expressed himself as much pleased with his victory. "It is entirely satisfactory," he said. A hearing in the case was conducted by H. G. Ehlers of Harrisburg, a representative of the commission, at the Arlington Hotel on December 29. Since that time nothing was heard of the case.

MAN HURT WHEN AUTO PLUNGES INTO HIS CAR; TROLLEY HITS A MACHINE

Clarence Strawn of Dawson was seriously injured Saturday afternoon when an automobile driven by James Goldsboro crashed into his car as it was standing in front of Levergood's restaurant on Bridge street, Dawson. He was brushed off the running board and thrown under his own car, part of the top penetrating his side. He was first removed to the home of John Levergood and later to his home. Physicians found that he had suffered bad bruises of the body and legs.

According to the stories of persons who saw the accident, Mr. Strawn was standing by his car when he saw Goldsboro coming across the Dawson bridge at a fast clip. Fearing that the car might come too close to his own machine for safety, Mr. Strawn climbed on the running board. The other car scraped the Strawn machine tearing off the fender and running board and throwing Mr. Strawn under it.

Czar's Soldiers on Western Front are to be Reinforced.

KAISER VISITS SOMME SECTOR

Receives Reports, Visits Wounded and is Prodigal With Iron Crosses; French Official Statement Declares German Attacks Are Beaten Back.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, July 17.—A contingent of Russian troops disembarked today at Brest, France.

The Russian troops will be sent to camp from Brest, and later to the front.

This is the sixth contingent of Russian troops, the arrival of which in France has been reported. Between April 20 and May 5 there arrived at Marseilles five bodies of Russian soldiers after a land and sea journey of about 17,500 miles from Moscow, where they are assembled, to Port Dulay, Manchuria, and thence by water via the Suez Canal.

The number of men in the first five contingents has not been officially given, but is believed to be about 35,000.

KAISER VISITS THE SOMME.

GERMANS REPULSED.

PARIS, July 17.—The Germans made two attacks in Lorraine last night. Two war office reports of today says both assaults were repulsed.

The attacks in Lorraine were defeated at a point southeast of Nancy.

West of Fleury the French made some progress, taking three machine guns. A raid on a trench in Champagne occupied by Russian troops was not successfully by a counter attack causing heavy loss to the Germans.

On the Verdun front the night was comparatively calm except in the vicinity of Hill 304, where rifle firing was brisk.

BARBERS STRIKE

Uniontown Finds It Hard to Get a Share of a Haircut.

About 40 Uniontown barbers went on strike this morning because the master barbers in seven shops refused to adopt the new rate scale, advancing the cost of haircuts from 25 to 35 cents.

The barbers are paid $16 a week and commission on extra business. The increase in price would give them a big increase in earnings.

The barbers who have adopted the new scale claim the boost is due to the war. The price of massage creams, lotions, hair tonics and other goods that is put on the heads of unsuspecting victims has gone up, they say. Notwithstanding this they are charging the same old prices for these preparations.

The barbers' earnings, it is said, average about $25 a week under the present scale.

BRAVE GIRL IS BADLY BURNED

Carries Flaming Comb Out of Cottage Rather Than Risk a Fire.

Cora DeMuth, 12 years old, is nursing painful burns on the hands because she preferred serious injury rather than that risk setting fire to the DeMuth cottage at Bear Run, Saturday evening she carried a burning celluloid comb downstairs and out into the open before dropping it.

The cottagers at Bear Run burn candles and one of them refused to work properly. Miss DeMuth, forgetting that combs are explosive, took them with a view of extinguishing the wick. There was an instant explosion. Although badly burned, she carried the comb and candle to the out of doors before dropping them.

BISHOP CANEVIN ASSISTS IN DEDICATION OF CHURCH

Solemn High Mass is Celebrated at St. Rita Edifice Visiting Priests Attend.

The St. Rita of Casella Italian Roman Catholic Church was dedicated yesterday with appropriate ceremony. The service at 10 o'clock was very impressive. Bishop J. F. Regis Canavin, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, delivered the sermon.

Solemn high mass was celebrated immediately following the dedicatory services. A number of visiting priests assisted in the mass, among them Rev. M. A. Lambing of Scotland, Rev. J. J. Gracany of Leisenring, Rev. Paul Gleason of Scotland and others.

Following the services a banquet was served at the home of Rev. Father Henry De Vivo, pastor of the church. The Italian Church was organized about two years ago, and membership had soon grown large enough to warrant the erection of a church building. The St. Rita Church was completed last December and services are now being conducted regularly in it.

The church is located on Second street, West Side. It is a brick building of pleasing architecture. The windows are particularly impressive and the interior of the church is handsomely finished.

Father De Vivo, pastor of the St. Rita Church, has been assisted in his work of organization by Rev. Father John T. Burns of the Immaculate Conception Church.

SEE A HUGE FISH

It Looks Like a Shark to Hundreds Who Crowd Bridge Rail.

"What is it?"

Hundreds of persons craned their necks over the side of the Young bridge about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and watched the antics of an extremely large fish on the surface of the water. Sharks being prominent in the minds of everyone because of the recent fatalities off the Jersey coast, someone suggested that it might be a small member of this famous family in the Young on a scouting expedition.

Another onlooker intimated that it might be a small sister of the Deutschland, anything being possible in these days of German ingenuity.

Some others with knowledge of things piscatorial came to the conclusion that it was just a big sucker. Whatever it was, it attracted as much attention as if it had been a shark or a submarine.

FIRE TRUCKS TO BE DELIVERED IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Old Wagon is Ready But for a Few Fancy Touches on the Body.

OTHER MAY BE ON THE WAY

American La France Company Was to Have Shipped New Hook and Ladder Wagon on Saturday But No Word Has Been Received of It.

Connellsville will have at least one and perhaps two of its new pieces of motor-driven fire fighting apparatus this week. The old fire wagon, which has been converted into a motor truck by mounting it upon a Pope-Hartford chassis, will be brought down from the Matthews factory at Uniontown in the next few days. It is complete, except for some fancy scrollwork which is to be painted on the body.

The new $6,250 American La France hook and ladder truck was to have been shipped from the factory on Saturday, but, having received word from the factory, Director of Public Safety M. B. Pryce does not know whether or not it is on the way. Keeping in close touch with the factory during the assembling of the truck, Mr. Pryce is certain that the truck is well on toward completion if not ready for shipment already.

With the two new trucks about ready the problem of where to locate the East Side central fire station is still involved. Council will go into the matter at a special meeting tonight. Director Pryce said today that the special committee had as yet come to no conclusion as to the site for the station. A meeting of the committee has been called for this afternoon at which time some decision might be reached. Council, however, will decide for the committee's recommendation must come to a vote before that body.

Once the site is purchased and the new trucks are delivered, Director Pryce and Fire Chief DeBolt will announce their plans for a Fire Prevention Day. This will take the form of a big celebration, in which firemen from all surrounding towns with their apparatus will participate and tests will be made of Connellsville's three motor-driven trucks.

SCIENTISTS FIND MEN HAD HORNS

Remarkable Discovery of an Extinct Race Made by Dr. G. T. Doney-hoo's Party.

A party consisting of Dr. George P. Doney-hoo of Coudersport, Pa., Lie well known archeologist and historian, formerly located here; Prof. A. B. Skinner of the American Indian Museum and Prof. W. K. Morehead of Phillips-Anderson Academy, have made a remarkable discovery in an Indian mound recently uncovered by them near Sayre, Pa., in the Susquehanna valley. In the mound were found the bones of 65 men which are believed to have been buried 700 years ago.

The average height of these men, when the skeletons were assembled, was seven feet, while many were much taller. Further evidence of their gigantic size was found in large stone axes in the grave. On some of the skulls, two inches above the perfectly formed forehead, were protuberances of bone evidently horns that had been there since birth.

Members of the expedition say that it is the first discovery of its kind on record. The skull and a few bones found in one grave were shipped to the American Indian Museum.

SODA WATER SHORTAGE THREATENS; CARBONIC ACID GAS IS SCARCE

Lovers of cooling summer beverages do not realize that there is likely to be shortage in the supply, due to lack of carbonic gas with which to charge soda fountains and beer pumps. The manufacturing plant in Pittsburg, upon which practically all of Western Pennsylvania depended for its supply, was burned out a short time ago and plans in other cities have as yet failed to ship in enough to cover the shortage.

"I phoned to a Pittsburg jobbing house yesterday," said a local druggist, "and they told me that some of the biggest hotels and fourlains there were already beginning to feel the effects of the shortage. It was impossible to get a single drum of the gas in the city, they said."

Carbonic gas is supplied in large cylindrical iron containers known as drums. These contain about 50 pounds of the gas and in summer weather this amount is sufficient to charge an ordinary drug store fountain for about two months. A drug

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ALONG

Captain Shaffer of Somerset in Charge; Guardsmen Object to Scheme by Which They Must Move Camp; Royal Swofford Given Detachment.

By O. R. Herwick, Staff Correspondent.

BL PASO, Texas, July 13.—Marching away from camp by the light of the magnificent Texas moon, the Third Battalion of the Tenth Regiment, N. G. P., left last night at 9:30 for the Glenn Springs district, the scene of recent border raids. With companies M, I, L and K, dubbed the "Milk Brigade," went a detachment of the hospital corps, composed almost entirely of Connellsville boys. Captain F. B. Shaffer of Somerset is in charge and with him were Sergeant Carl P. Snair, First Class Private Charles McCormick and Privates James Darr, Dewey Miller, William Martray, Clifton Crowley, Walter Rogers, all of Connellsville, and Walter Lazelle of Uniontown.

The departing battalion, which is expected to see active service because of the fact that the remnants of Villa's scattered band is supposed to be in the Glenn Springs district, was given a royal sendoff. The Tenth Regiment Band turned out, along with every man in the remainder of the regiment. Nature lent a helping hand by producing a night that for beauty could hardly be surpassed.

The Third Battalion is equipped with everything necessary for modern warfare. The members of the hospital corps were equipped with Colt automatic revolvers, to be used only where combatants refuse to recognize the Red Cross ensign. In addition each man was supplied with a Red Cross arm-band with an individual number on it for identification, in case of accident.

It was a proud band of boys that marched in the moonlight and none was prouder than the Connellsville lads who composed the hospital corps. Three of them, Privates Miller, Martray and Darr, have not yet completed their high school course here, but there are none braver than they.

Company D boys were all excellent Tuesday night when the report came out that we would likely break camp before morning to move to the Big Bend district, several hundred miles from here and about 70 miles from the nearest railroad. No orders came, however. It finally became known that one battalion only would go to Glenn Springs. Villa's defeat at Parral, it is said, makes it unlikely that he would be heard from again, though the remnants of his band were believed to be headed for Glenn Springs or the immediate vicinity.

The grounds are completely cleared off here and the boys are not eager to move to a new camping grounds unless it brings them close to the scene of actual conflict. Some of the boys believe that the moving business is a scheme of a land company to get its property cleared off at the expense of the guardsmen, who still exhibit sore and blistered hands from the hard work they performed making their present camp ground fit to inhabit.

The boys are getting experiences here thick and fast. The windstorm Monday night being one not soon to be forgotten. Early in the evening the wind began to rise and by bedtime it was blowing a gale. The tents for the most part weathered the storm, but several of them went down and the boys were without a home for the night. Those that stood the test did so because of the heroic efforts of the occupants. Large stones, logs and parts of wagons were tied on the guy ropes in addition to the hanging onto the ropes by the boys themselves. Some had gone to bed when the worst of the storm came and there was scamparing in every direction in all kinds of costumes and some without costumes at all, in search of material to hold their tents. Added to the discomfort the wind carried the loose sand with it and filled the eyes and mouths. The cactus also contributed its share to the bare feet and the next morning there were many sore eyes and feet in addition to having the ears, nose, mouth and even the teeth filled with the gritty sand.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill.—"While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the insane hospital."—Mrs. E. Sheldon, 6657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, but with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

"ANURICI" THE NEWEST DISCOVERY IN CHEMISTRY

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the "Invalids" Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Doctor Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anurici" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anurici," manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or even write Doctor Pierce for a free sample. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Doctor Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you, without fee or charge.

NOTE:—French scientists affirm that "Anurici" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—or more in extreme cases—as "Anurici" (thanks to Doctor Pierce's achievement) is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the original Little Liver Pills. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.

Thousands, annoyed by headaches, nervousness, biliousness, sleeplessness, etc.—often due to coffee drinking—have heeded a friendly suggestion to quit the coffee and use

Instant Postum

This pure food-drink is made of wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses. It has a rich, snappy flavor much like that of high grade Java coffee, yet it contains no caffeine—the drug in coffee—nor other harmful element.

Freedom from caffeine gives Nature right of way to rebuild and revitalize the mental and physical forces.

There are two forms of Postum: The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum, a soluble form, is made in the cup by adding boiling water—ready instantly. Some prefer one, some the other; they are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

With most coffee-drinkers the change to Postum marks the start to better health and greater comfort.

A GREATER CONNELLSVILLE.

The growth of the by-product coke industry may have the ultimate effect of putting a portion of the healthy ovens of the Connelville region out of business, but it will not necessarily put Connelville out of business. Its only effect will be to change the coke plants into coal plants, and the effect of this change upon Connelville will be negligible. For a great many years past Connelville has ceased to depend wholly upon the coke trade for its prosperity. Instead our enterprising citizens have encouraged the location of manufacturing industries of a diversified character with a view to making the city a manufacturing as well as a coke and railroad center, and they have succeeded excellently well in spite of the usual proportion of misadventure which overtakes such promotion. It is the fashion to speak of the Connelville coke business as being decadent, and of the Connelville region as being worked out and about to be deserted; yet the original or main coke region, of which Connelville is the center, will not be worked out in half a century hence. It is true that some of the Connelville coking operations are being abandoned, but if the Connelville coke region is going backward Connelville itself is by the same signs and tokens going forward.

Connellville advanced from a borough to a city of the third class by consolidation with New Haven. At the same time portions of the suburbs were taken in. The city largely overlapped the old borough boundaries. South Connelville was urged to come in, but the residents of that community seemed to think city government would be too expensive. Later on they erected themselves into a borough and they are now having the usual struggles of a small borough with the costly propositions of light and water, sewage and paving, not to mention police and fire protection and other expenses. As an integral part of the city of Connelville these improvements would have been practically immediate and without any material increase in taxation.

South Connelville may become a part of Connelville some time in the future, but this time it is possible that Greater Connelville will not stop at South Connelville. Its next expansion promises to be more ambitious. Much depends upon circumstances, but the circumstances seem to be accumulating. A petition is in circulation for the construction of a county road from Dunbar to South Connelville by a route which follows the trolley line out of Dunbar but keeps on the right skirting Porter hill and avoiding the railroad which are crossed overhead by a bridge over the Young river, near the West Penn power house, landing on the high ground in South Connelville. This is a new and direct route from Dunbar to Connelville. Its chief cost lies in the overhead bridge, but its compensation lies in the elimination of all grade crossings and the material shortening of the route.

The proposition comes as a result of the altered conditions in the Dunbar Valley caused by the proposed improvements there. A large portion of this territory will soon be covered by the terminals of the Western Maryland. It is the location of the new electrical steel mill. Here also is the mammoth West Penn power house, which furnishes electrical power cheaper than Niagara, and which is already turning half the wheels in the Connelville coke region. The construction of the proposed short road to Dunbar would carry the trolley line with it. For workmen in such a suburb the trolley is a desirable if not an indispensable convenience. Experience shows that workmen's homes cluster about it. In due course of time a built-up community may be expected between Connelville and Dunbar, if the Dunbar short line is successfully established. Eventually Connelville will in such case be knocking at Dunbar's door just as the new stands beckoning on South Connelville's threshold.

The proposed short route to Dunbar may well be considered as an important link in the chain of Connelville's destiny. The bridge at South Connelville will cost the county some money, it is true, but the money is coming to this community, and we should not be at all backward about demanding it. Nor should we fail to greet and grasp opportunity on its rounds. We should take a chance on the Direct-to-Dunbar proposition. Support of it will not only be a nobly act, but it may also prove to be one of the most profitable investments Connelville ever made.

STILL HAVE HOPES.

The people of the lower Young valley are disinclined to give up the fight for slackwater improvement. The McKeesport Chamber of Commerce which has hosted the project persistently does not consider that the recent adverse report of the chief engineer of the army closes the incident without hope of a re-hearing later. This feeling is shared generally by the friends of the measure and they view the situation with more or less equanimity not unmixed with a determination to stay on the job. The spirit of the people on this issue is thus expressed by the McKeesport Times:

McKeesport, however, with their characteristic determination, will not give up the fight that has been on for many years. There are hopes that a favorable recommendation will sooner or later be had. It may take double the time that already has been spent, but that will make no difference to McKeesport. It is generally felt that the city and surrounding towns will be greatly benefited by the proposed improvement, and with that before them they have no intention of going right ahead as if no adverse recommendation had been made. What McKeesport wants is a hearing, and its citizens do not propose to give up as long as they can stand on their feet and argue. The West Newton Times-Sun finds much the same feeling to be prevalent among the slackwater advocates in that town. They admit that their plans have suffered a rather severe setback but they bravely assert that they are not cast down or discouraged. Down at Westmoreland's chief inland port many persons profess to see a certain political significance in the recent project which the river improvement project has received. Upon this view of the matter the Times-Sun observes:

If the Young country wasn't so overwhelmingly Republican, if the Democrats had a single Congressman hereabouts, there might be some hope for the project. But as it is, it's a cinch the present Congress will not give a dam for the Young, or any other river for that matter, unless there's something in it for the party. But never mind, the project is under whose glorious banner the great Pittsburgh district was brought to its present industrial and commercial position is coming into its own, and then—well, just bide your time and see.

NOT UNLAWFUL PIKE.

Unlittown complains that the State Highway Commissioner deprived the city of $75,000 profit by refusing to permit the hill climbing contest to be run on the National Pike.

And so the underlying motives of this affair has cropped out. It was not that the contest was illegal, but that the investigation of the possibilities of motor preparedness. It was just a little stroke of sordid business estimated at $75,000.

It is to be regretted that Unlittown lost $75,000. She needs the money. But Unlittown must rid herself of the notion that the National Pike is her private property. The use of the road for any such private purpose as the hill-climbing contest, which is only a polite term for reckless road racing, is not sanctioned by law and Commissioner Black is merely enforcing the law as he finds it.

If the Unlittown people have any special privileges or private ownership in the National Pike they should seek to have them confirmed by special enactment of the Legislature. When the latter body gets through defining their status they will know better where they are at.

The American army on the Mexican border should be supplied with a few hundred Lewis machine guns not to mention a fleet of airplanes. It is a dry climate, to be sure, but if the army were really equipped they might be driven to the water holes in a day and dumped up to keep them from dying out of commission.

The Allies continue to buck the German liner for substantial gains, but the cost is murderous.

The rate case of the Connelville coke men was well prepared. Many Connelville coke men are old railroad men, or men with railroad connections, and what they don't know about railroad rates isn't so much.

The Tenth regiment gets an automobile as a present from Charles McKennan, owner of the new Big Bend country. It is probably run between water holes.

Former Judge Umbel declined to enter politics again as Chairman of the Democratic County Committee and the choice of the committee fell upon County Commissioner George P. Hoover, who can be depended upon to give the Democratic party of Fayette county a good deal of trouble.

If the married men all come back from Mexico under the formal release order, it is stated that Company D would have lost a corporate body. If this be true there must be some Company D dependents and they should be looked after.

The abandonment of switching charges by the Connelville railroads will help the business men of this community build it up industrially.

The Connelville School Board has had some fine bargains in second-hand buildings, but they are all gone.

Connellville's new theatre is Paramount.

The new Isabella coke plant is a going concern. In the old days it never earned enough to pay the interest on its indebtedness.

There is a demand for export iron, but the Deutschland is not loading up with it.

Editorial Wisdom

The Cumberland News, in an analysis of our Mexican policy, says that the administration indicates that it has no objection other than the preservation of something like peace and the working out of Mexican situation by the usual and slow, uncertain and impracticable processes of Mexican thought.

The Somerset Standard offers a plain truth when it declares that the question of whether we are to have the vacillating, mind-changing policies of Democracy or the sturdy, firm and reliable management of the Republican party in governmental affairs is a question of the future.

"I don't think they are out for meanness," he announced when he returned. "They tell me this year is on a sort of short cut from some of the Truckee lakes down to their villages. But we got to keep a sharp eye on our horses, and we got to stand guard to-night."

Very early in the morning, when we were just up, several of the oldest came over to tell us that some of the young men would stay to work for us, if we so desired. We replied that we had no goods with which to pay for work. Shortly after the whole tribe vanished down river.

A week passed, and we had almost forgotten our chance visitors. One day the two Spaniards, Buck Barry and I were at the camp. McGilly and McNally were the hunters for the day. Johnny and Missouri Jones kept camp. We had had a most successful morning and were just stoking our tools preparatory to returning to camp for dinner. Buck Barry was standing near some small sage bushes at the corner end of the clearing. He was just in the act of lighting a freshly filled pipe when he stopped as though petrified, the burning match suspended above the bowl of his pipe. Then he turned quickly toward the sage bushes, and as he did so a bow twanged, and an arrow sang past his head, so close as to draw blood from the lobe of his ear. With a roar of anger Buck Barry raised his pickaxe and charged into the bushes. We saw a flash of steel from the ground, and a man stumbled flat. Before the man could get up, Buck Barry was upon him, and the pickaxe descended. At the same instant we heard a series of whoops and two shots in rapid succession from the direction of camp. Buck Barry came bounding out of the sage brush and seized his rifle from under the bush where he had kept them.

"Come out!" he shouted. "Let's get out of this!"

We ran as hard as we could for a hundred yards, or until we had reached the flat of the river bottom. Then we paused, uncertain as to just what next to do.

"Wait a minute," said I. "I'll just take a look," and hurried up a little spur knoll to the right. From that elevation I instantly caught sight of a crowd of Indians coming up the valley at full speed. Most of them were on horseback, but a number leaped along on foot, keeping up with the animals. One look was enough. I raced down to my companions' aid, and we hastily took refuge in the only cover near enough to conceal us—a little clump of willows in a small damp watercourse. There we crouched, rifles ready.

CHAPTER XVI.

On Trail of the Indians.

I WAS terribly excited. The patter of the horses was now plainly audible, though, owing to the low quality of the ground, they could not become visible farther than a hundred yards away. I trembled violently and cursed myself for a coward, though I really do not think I was frightened. At any rate, I became deadly cool the moment the first savage appeared, and I drew a steady bead and topped him off his horse before any one else had got in action. The shot brought them to a stand. They had, I think, expected to find us in our ravine and were surprised. Immediately I dropped the butt of my rifle to the ground and began reloading. A shower of arrows flew toward us, but were deflected by the crisscross of the willows. In fact, this lacerwork of stout branches seemed to be an excellent sort of armor against arrows. In the meantime my companions had each dropped his gun, though Vazquez had better luck than still, as his savage was only clipped in the leg. I fired once more and elicited a howl. There could be no mistaking at the distance unless a man quite lost his head, and personally I was too scared for that. Another shower of arrows rattled in the willows; then the band broke to right and left and raced away up the hills like mad. They had no courage and lost stomach for the fight at once when they found us prepared.

We were astonished and delighted, for we had fully expected to be ridden down. As soon as we were quite certain this sudden retreat was not a ruse we came out from our shelter. How many wounded had made off, if any, we could not tell. Three dead bodies lay on the ground. To them we paid no attention, but, with many foreboding hunger, hurried back to camp. When we appeared in sight Missouri Jones ran out to meet us, his rifle over his arm.

"Where's Johnny?" I cried. "He was down at the river a-getting water," said Jones. "And I ain't seen him since."

We all ran down to the edge of the river pool whence we drew our supply. For a moment our hearts stood still, for no Johnny was in sight. Then he arose dripping from the middle of the pool.

"This water's cold," he remarked conversationally. "I think I'll come out. Anybody hurt?"

To waded ashore and shook himself like a dog.

"I didn't hear 'em until they were right on top of me, and I couldn't get away without being seen," said he, "so I just waded out and imitated a rock with my head."

We roared with laughter by way of relief.

"It isn't the first time, Johnny," said I. "That's all right," put in Missouri Jones. "This is no joke. They got three of our horses."

Then he told us his experience. "I was just a-browsing of the venison," he explained, "when I happened to look up, and there was three of our horses running off, tattle up, and a half dozen Indians a-ho-ho-ho driving 'em. I let drive with old Betsy and Johnny's gun, but they was about out of range. While I was looking after them about forty Indians went past sky-boostin'. I suppose they thought the first lot had all the horses, and so they didn't stop. The rest of the horses, luckily, was asleep behind the cottonwoods. You bet I didn't call their attention to myself."

He exhibited the greatest satisfaction when he learned that we had accounted for four.

"That's something like Indian fighting," he observed, "though these are a pore, spiteful lot. The whole bag ain't worth more than one of them good horses."

We did no more gold washing that day, but remained close in camp, consumed with anxiety for our companions. From time to time we fired a shot, with the idea of warning them that something was amiss. The remaining half dozen horses we ran into the corral.

Night fell, and still the hunters did not return. We were greatly alarmed and distressed, but we could not think of anything to do, for we had not the least idea in what direction to look.

"Bugsby and Yank are old hands," speculated Missouri Jones conversationally. "And the fact that Indians is abroad would make them slow and careful."

Some of us felt like turning in. We all sat outside on the ground around a little fire.

Toward midnight we heard voices, and a moment later Yank and Bugsby strode in out of the darkness.

"Where's McNally?" Yank instantly demanded. "Hain't he come in yet?"

We told him we had seen nothing of the missing man.

"Well, he'll drift in pretty soon," said Bugsby. "We lost him in the darkness about two hours back."

They set to frying some venison steak. Excitedly and in antiphony Johnny and I detailed the day's adventure. Both the backwoodsman listened in silence, but without suspending their cooking.

"They didn't bother McNally," Bugsby decided. "They'd drive those horses away five or six miles before they'd stop. And McNally was with us just a little piece back. He'll be in by the time the venison is cooked."

But he was not, nor by an hour later. Then we decided that we must go out to look for him.

"We can't see nothing till daylight," said Bugsby, "but we can get started back for the last place we saw him."

It was now about 1 o'clock in the morning. Bugsby appeared, Yank and myself to accompany him. Don Caspar was suffering from a slight attack of malarial fever, and Johnny, to his vast disgust, was left to hold him company. We took each a horse, which we had to ride bareback and with a twisted rope "war halter."

We proceeded then for a long time—five or six miles. I should think. By the undefined feeling of dark space at either hand I judged we must be atop a ridge.

"It was somewhere on this ridge we lost him," said he. "I reckon now we'd just better set down and wait for dawn."

Accordingly we dismounted and drew together in a little group. Over the top of the great ranges a gibbous moon rose slowly. By her dim light I could make out the plume on either side our ridge and the other dark ridges across the way. Packed as our horses occasionally stamped a hoof or blew through their noses.

I lay flat on my back and idly counted the stars. Happening to glance sideways, I caught the flicker of a distant light.

"Bugsby," I whispered, "there's a fire barely more than a half mile away."

He, too, lay down in order to get my angle of view.

"It's not McNally," he pronounced after a moment's careful inspection, "for it's too big a fire, and it's a lot more than half a mile away. That's a good big fire. I think it's Indians."

"Probably the same gang that lifted our horses," cried Bugsby. He sat upright and peered at us through the dim moonlight. "Want to get after them?" he inquired.

"You bet," said Bugsby emphatically. "They may have McNally, and if they haven't they've got our horses."

"There's six of us, and we can share make it interesting for that lot," agreed Yank. "Can we get to where they are?"

"I think so," said Bugsby. "We rode for another hour, slanting down the mountain side toward the clearing. Every time a horse rolled a rock or broke a dried branch it seemed to me that the mountains reverberated from end to end. I don't believe I allowed myself to weigh over six ounces all told. Finally we left the slope for the bottom of the valley."

"I'd rather be below their camp than above it. It's going to be hard to get out this way," complained Bugsby, "but it's the best we can do."

We dismounted, and we crept forward another half mile, leading our animals. "This is as close as I dare take the horses," whispered Bugsby. "Vazquez, you stay here with them," he said in Spanish, "and when I yell twice quick and sharp you answer, so we'll know where to find you. Come on!"

We raised our pieces, but before the command to fire was given one of the sleepers threw aside his blanket, stretched himself and arose. It was a white man!

I confess that for a moment I turned physically sick.

"Hello!" called Bugsby, quite unmoved.

The white man seized his rifle, and the recumbent forms leaped to life. "Who are you?" he demanded sharply. "Speak quick!"

"Keep your hat on!" drawled the trapper, advancing into the light. "We're perfectly respectable miners, out looking for a lost man, and we saw your fire."

The rest of us uttered a yell of joy and relief. One of the men who had been sleeping around the fire was McNally himself.

We drew together, explaining, congratulating. The strangers, six in number, turned out to be travelers from the eastern side of the ranges. They listened with interest and attention to our account of the Indian attack. McNally explained that he had been uncertain of his route in the dark, so that when he caught sight of the fire he had made his way to it. We were well engaged in this mutual explanation when we were struck dumb by a loud drawn out yell from the direction of our own horses.

"It is Vazquez," explained Barry. "He wants to let us know where he is." And he answered the yell.

But at that moment one of our own horses dashed up to the bunch of picketed animals and wheeled, trembling, its rope bridle dangling broken from its head. Sam Bugsby darted forward to seize the hanging cord. "It's cut!" he cried. "Quick! Out across the valley, boys!"

We followed him into the moonlight, grasping our rifles. A moment later a compact band swept toward us at full speed, our horses in the lead, their rope halters dangling, a dozen Indians on horseback following close at their heels and urging them on.

"Shoot, boys!" yelled Bugsby, discharging his own piece.

Our rifles cracked. It was impossible to take aim, and I am sure we hit head. Sam Bugsby darted forward to seize the hanging cord.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Although another two months must elapse before the candidates for the Eastern varsity football teams begin to assemble for gridiron practice, coaches and managers are already preparing for the coming pignum campaign. Footballs are being distributed among the players for use during the vacation period and those who will have charge of the squads this preliminary activity is made necessary as the result of complete changes in the coaching system and personnel for the coming season.

Both Pennsylvania and Yale will enter the football arena this fall with a new coaching corps in charge of the teams and the playing of the cloyens under these mentors will be watched with more than the usual interest by both those affiliated with these universities and the general football fan.

At Yale Tad Jones, who signed a three year contract last winter, will be head coach. He will be assisted by Trainer Mike Sweeney, Arthur Brides and several other well known Yale players of the past with Walter Camp occupying his old time position of advisory coach and strategist. Jones, it is hoped by Yale men, will prove to be the Moses to lead the Eli football clan into the land of gridiron victories, a place which the Blue has soon but from afar in recent years.

Pennsylvania is in somewhat of a similar position and has selected Robert Folwell as the coach to bring again to Franklin Field the gridiron glory which in former years was associated with the Red and Blue elevens. Folwell, like Jones, has some excellent material to begin work with and will be assisted by Charley Wharton and By. Dickson as well as other former Quaker players of repute. It Folwell's record as coach at Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson can be taken as a criterion, Pennsylvania will be a gridiron opponent to be treated with great respect during 1916.

At the other leading Eastern institutions where football is accorded strong support, there will be little change in either the coaching staffs or the system in vogue during the past few years. Percy Houghton will not be able to devote his entire time to the Harvard squad during the early portion of the autumn, because his duties as president of the Boston National League Baseball Club will require much of his attention until about the middle of October. Leo Leary is expected to do much of the preliminary coaching, assisted by Charlie Brickley and other Harvard stars of yesterday.

"Speedy" Rush will again be in charge of the Princeton football destiny assisted by a larger squad of graduates than was the case a season ago. This will be Rush's second year with the Tigers and judging from the progress the team made under his instruction last fall, the Tigers should be formidable on the gridiron this autumn. At Cornell, Dr. Al Sharpe will face the task of developing another Red and White team capable of playing a game along the lines of Dartmouth will also depend upon Frank Cavanaugh to maintain the high standard of the Hanover teams of the past few years. Glenn Warner will be back at Pittsburg and Foster Sanford at Rutgers in addition to several other coaches who have succeeded in putting small colleges in prominent places on the Eastern football map.

The recent report of the committee in charge of the building and management of the Yale Bowl, the largest college football arena in the country, shows that almost $750,000 to date and have cost almost $150,000 will be required to complete the project as originally outlined.

Monte Cross is responsible for a story of two base runners being put out by a batted ball. While playing with St. Louis, Cross was on second and Clements on third. With two out and three and two on the batter ball, base runners started with the windup. The batter hit along the third base line, winging Clements and the ball carried off the latter's shin and struck Cross just as he reached third, both being declared out as the result of being hit by a batted ball.

"THE MYSTERIES OF MYRA."—The dainty actress, Jean Sathern, appears at the Soisson Theatre today in the interesting serial, "The Mysteries of Myra." This episode takes up the story at the point where Myra possesses the spirit of the Black Master and vice versa. During this period she scorns the attention of Dr. Alden and to spite him announces her engagement to Varney. Thereafter she makes preparations to kill her own body and spirit when the Black Master's spirit goes back into his own body. They Wouldn't Take Him Seriously, is a Gold Seal two reel drama. Herbert Rushton appears as the society man who is never asked, seriously by the feminine members, of his social set and Agnes Vernon as the girl he finally wins as the principals in this romantic drama. "The Head of the Family," is a Rex drama with Ben Wilson and Linda Hunter. It is the story of a man who resorts to cavernous methods to convert his wife into a woman. Sports of the Rajah in Mysterious India, is a Powers drama showing the first of the Dorset expedition pictures of various points of interest in India. "DORIAN'S DIVORCE"—A five-part Metro attraction presenting Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine and others, is the attraction today at the Globe. Dorian Kenne, a broker, who has lost his money in Wall Street, and his wife Florence, dissatisfied with her lot, wants a divorce and agrees to let her have it. While the papers are being prepared, Sanders, Florence's god-father, confesses to Dorian that he has misappropriated funds belonging to Florence. He fears an exposure since she is getting a divorce, and may demand an accounting. Dorian promises to do what he can to protect Sanders. They go to Dorian's hunting lodge where Florence agrees to meet Dorian with her lawyer. There Sanders weakens and tells Florence of the missing funds. She turns upon him in a violent temper. A maid hears them quarrelling and soon after a shot. Hurrying into the room she finds Sanders dead. She tells Dorian that Florence has killed Sanders. In his devotion for his wife Dorian takes the blame for the crime. He escapes in an automobile. Down the road Dorian encounters a highwayman who holds him up, takes his clothing and the machine and leaves his outfit with the bewildered broker. The picture has a happy ending.

"THE HEART OF NORA FLYNN"—Presenting Marie Doro, the premiere article of the screen, and "Gloria's Romance," starring Billie Burke, the star supreme, are the opening attractions tomorrow at the Paramount theatre. In "The Heart of Nora Flynn" Miss Doro appears as an Irish nurse girl, into whose unwinding hands is placed the shaping of events in a domestic complication. For a number of years

Miss Doro has been on the speaking stage as a star under the management of the late Charles Frohman. How she hopes to be in the service only long enough to save money that she and Nolan may marry and have a home of their own, and how she saves her mistress from disgrace even after she is denounced by her jealous lover, and how she finally convinces him that his suspicions were unfounded, goes toward making a story, gripping in intensity and unusual theme. "The Heart of Nora Flynn" contains all the elements of a sensation. "Little Billy" Jacobs, who appears prominently in the support of Miss Doro, though only 5 years old, has the distinction of being a photodramatic star in his own right. Ever since he was 2 years old he has been receiving a salary that some of the important screen stars would envy. The first episode of "Gloria's Romance," with Billie Burke in the leading role, ably supported by Henry Kolker and others, will be presented. "Gloria's Romance" is a motion picture novel by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Holmes and gives Miss Burke an excellent opportunity to display her dramatic ability.

C. Ogilvie in Dunbar township. The trip will be made by automobiles. The meeting was in charge of the women members of the club and was one of the best held of the season. Fifty members including farmers and families from all over the county attended. The general subject for discussion was "Woman and the Home." The program was as follows:

"Name five of the greater labor savings." Mrs. David Junk and Mrs. John Gilchrist. Readings were given by Mrs. John T. Smith, Mrs. A. C. Ogilvie and Mrs. J. Howard Dunn. You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

They Face Life in Border
Camp Without Any Complaints.

LOOKING AT THE SUNNY SIDE

Company D and Hospital Detachment Left in Camp Pershing Making the Most of Their Lot and Hope for a Chance to See Some Real Service.

By O. R. Herwick, Staff Correspondent.
CAMP PERSHING, El Paso, July 15.—The ambitions of Darr and Miller will surely be realized now. They are on the trail of Villa for sure. They say they will get him, too.

Miller said he never expected to see himself fixed up like this, as he showed his red cross and fondly fingered his .45 calibre Colt.

Darr had trouble getting into his pistol and other equipment, but says he could get out of it quicker if pressed too close.

Bill Markey tried to back out of going until he found out pistol were to be used. Then you couldn't have kept him in camp with a galling gun.

Walter Rogers was making inquiry yesterday about the price of armored auto trucks. Walter went with the third battalion last night.

Walter Lazelle was the first to volunteer to go when he heard a part of the regiment was moving. He thought he would get a chance to add to his already voluminous correspondence.

Cliff Crowley will be missed by the boys here, as Cliff took care of the visitors to camp—lady visitors.

Sergeant Carl E. Blair, the war bride, says he don't want to be forgotten when orders are received to send married men home. "If wife could only see me now," he remarked, when his command pulled out loaded down like pack mules.

Walter Rogers was anxious to be appointed an orderly when he found out the orderlies were to get horses.
Walter's horse turned out to be a mule, however. He still seemed to be satisfied, however. "Reminds me of home," he said.

Walter Richey, formerly of Connecticut, hunted up his uncle, V. Bert Richey, yesterday. Walter is with the Eighteenth Regiment.

George Broad was sick for a couple of days. He got a letter with a check in it yesterday and today he is well again.

Chick Strickler of Scottsdale, was a visitor at the Tenth hospital yesterday.
Sergeant Joseph Abkenier has about half of Company D at the hospital at sick call this morning. Nothing serious, however. The Giants are in fine shape generally and were sorry they were not among the ones called on yesterday for Glenn Springs.

Clyde Turner had a bolt on his neck lanced yesterday. Worse than a Mexbullet, he says.

Clarence Cooper saw the "Sunshine
Special" pull out yesterday and said
"There goes that 'Sometime special'."
And he said it longingly, too.

It is generally believed by the boys here that Denny Miller could show those Fayette county speed merchants something if Villa pressed him too close. There would be no third place for him in that race.

George McCoy, a vaudeville star, who joined Company D at Connellsville, is helping the band to entertain the boys in camp with his excellent voice. Company D is proud of him, too.

Cliff Crowley wanted to take the flag pole off the hospital to carry his red cross on, so nobody would fail to see it.

Phil Swartzwelder has trouble keeping his stuff together. Phil says he believes that if some of the fellows were let go, about half of the men would have all the equipment.

Lyell Butterworth remarked after watching the departing boys a while that if they don't get Villa or get to use their guns on something soon, he feared he would have to get out of camp.

The last thing Jimmy Darr wanted to know was if it was dishonorable for a red cross man to use his weapon on Villa.

The Company D boys say they are all getting heavier. They attribute it to the sand storm.

Dave Randolph is one of the bravest from Connellsville. He was among the first to the international bridge at El Paso. Dave is some soldier—on the job.

Sergeant Cox predicted rain last night, but a native told him no one predicted that but a fool. A fool or a tenderfoot, and since then Cox is more careful. It has only rained once here since Christmas.

Howard Seebert says he thinks they brought us down here to clear the state of Texas of its cactus. Howard is no longer either.

The officers' mess tent was blown down in the windstorm and the big guns had their breakfast on a lumber pile the next morning.

They say it is seven miles to the top of Mount Franklin. It only looks like half a mile to us. With a strong glass much artillery can be seen scattered over there. It is said they have the range of Carranza's camp across the river and could clean it up in 15 minutes if he started anything.

Paul Williams is helping out at the officers' mess temporarily.

Harold Herwick and myself were the first to receive a box at El Paso from home. It was a peach, too.

Donald Kimmell, with the Tenth Band, has been off duty with a bad
flu. He expects to get back in the harness tomorrow.

There will be lots of new laundries in Connellsville when the boys get back. Jimmy Decker says he is going in partnership with Lee Lee. Yesterday was wash day.

Bill Markey had trouble with his laundry. His blue box ran all through the balance of his laundry. He looks like a Greaser now.

and one of the armored auto trucks

across the street.

The digestive apparatus of the boys is good now. Lots of sand in their stomachs.

Walter Rodgers says he will never join another army—not even the Salvation Army.

Jimmy Darr says if he has to render any first aid to injured Greasers, he will give him a pill with one hand and have his bolo ready with the other.

"Gander" Koffer says they will never shoot him at sunrise. He is never up at that time.

Phil Swartzwelder dreamed he was home last night. All the boys said they would like to have been with him.

Captain Herwick has issued bolos and wire cutters to his men and they are now ready for anything. They would prefer going home, though.

The wagon train of the Tenth is now completed and embraces 28 covered wagons. The regiment also has four machine guns attached. Colonel Coulter says his regiment is now fit for anything that comes its way.

Chief Washburn led the boys of Company E to the hospital at sick call this morning. The chief is popular everywhere.

All the sergeants of Company D are out with two squads each going through skirmish drill and stacking of arms. They are proficient in both, but do not intend to lag for lack of practice.
